

IWASHERE

BRIDGING WORLDS - ONE SONG AT A TIME

Artist: IWASHERE

Singel: Writing the trails of the West

Release date: 5th of December 2020

The Norwegian trio IWASHERE is releasing their second single! Over the next year, they will release one single each month that will culminate in the album "Bridging Worlds - one song at a time" - a record about an exciting journey among different Native American Nations, cultural bridging and strong personalities.

"Writing the trails of the west" is the sound of the train of so called civilization entering the vast prairie landscape of America. The song is deeply inspired by the work and personality of the contemporary western author Rick Steber, who was born and grew up in Klamath Indian Reservation. His books are a strong contribution to true and correct history regarding the European settlers early and contemporary interaction with native nations. The song carries a message and hope for how these cultures now can coexist.

We visited Rick just outside Prineville two years ago, stayed with him for a couple of days, experienced a lot and became good friends. A few days later he appeared at a concert we did 3 hours away in Eugene, he just wanted to meet us again to hear more music and say good bye before we went overseas. We have kept in touch since then and it is Rick who has made the title of the song.

This is IWASHERE:

Martine Kraft: huldrefele, hardanger fiddle, vocal and flutes
Nils Jørgen Nygaard Kraft: keys
Sven Andréen: programming, samples, drums and percussion

Information about the release:

Artist: IWASHERE
Titel: Writing The Trails Of The West
Melody: Martine Kraft
Length: 04:47
Produser: Iwashere
Mix and master: Sven Andréen/Klokkerient
Cover: Martine Kraft/Alexander Rostad
Label: Klokkereint
ISRC: NOGBH2019010
EAN/UPC: 195497658787

Link to press photos, cover, wav and mp3:

<https://www.dropbox.com/sh/g3qeq38m5xrkpt3/AAA0V5Z1afCecT6Vd9fS34Zya?dl=0>

Contact information:

Nils Jørgen Nygaard Kraft
+47 95 17 42 71
hardingfiddler@gmail.com